Acknowledgments

The production of this book has been sponsored by the Nanoose First Nation through a grant from the First People's Cultural Foundation. We thank them for their support, which was essential for the completion of this work. We thank Barbara Barltrop, Leonard Edwards, and Andy Klakikat for securing these funds, and Reinouw Abbott, project coordinator, and Barbara Barltrop, project administrator, for supervising our work.

The Nanoose Elders made up the core production team on this project. Leonard Edwards vetted a preliminary version. Then Anne Bob, Jim Bob, and Leonard Edwards discussed and corrected the data. Thanks to these Elders for their diligent work and also for keeping the project on track, especially when it all seemed so overwhelmingly tedious. Thanks also to Jenny Bob for assisting with meetings.

The research underlying this book came about as a joint project between Nanaimo School District No. 68 and the Chemainus, Nanaimo, and Nanoose First Nations. We thank the First Nations representatives, Barbara Barltrop (Nanoose), Terry Sampson (Chemainus), and Barbara White (Nanaimo), for their help and cooperation. We would also like to thank Judy Fraser, Jim Kellogg, Leslie Lippert, and Donna Ross of School District 68, who facilitated the planning and implementation process, and Adele Klatt, for providing administrative support. Thanks to Mercedes Hinkson, Simon Fraser University, for initiating this project and helping with the first round of research. Thanks to David Bodaly, Geraldine Manson, and Maria Seward for coordinating the Elders' meetings that took place during 1994-1997. The Chemainus, Nanaimo, and Nanoose First Nations provided space for our meetings and transportation for the Elders. Also thanks to Geraldine Manson and Penny Seward for inviting us to participate in the Nanaimo Elders' group.

Funding for the research came from the Province of British Columbia, Ministry of Education, through two Aboriginal Education Curriculum Development Grants and two Implementation Grants spanning the period of 1994-1997. We also acknowledge support from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the Jacobs Fund, and Simon Fraser University through a President's Research Grant. SFU also provided the audio equipment used in this project. Thanks to Dr. Evan Alderson, former Dean of Arts, Simon Fraser University, for allowing my time to be seconded to the language project. Buy-out was jointly accomplished by the Nanoose First Nation, the Nanaimo First Nations Treaty Negotiation Office, and School District 68. We also thank the Nanaimo First Nations Treaty Negotiations Office for their support for research on placenames and on flora and fauna.

The identifications and discussions of flora and fauna are based on the remarks of the Elders. Working with ethnobiologist Brian Compton, the Elders examined specimens or photographs and made cultural commentaries about their location and use. In some instances, identifications are only tentative. Further work is under way to expand and improve our understanding of the traditional and contemporary cultural significance of the biological world. We hope to complete a more detailed work on flora and fauna in the near future.

Charles Ulrich was responsible for font design, technical assistance, data entry, word processing, and producing and editing the manuscript. We thank him for seeing this project through and also for understanding our commitment to research on the language.

Tom Hukari and Wayne Suttles, mentors and colleagues, have been very helpful in verifying data. Dr. Hukari's Cowichan Dictionary has not only provided a tremendous reference that has greatly assisted this project but has also set a very high standard of scholarship. We hope that we have adequately followed in his footsteps. We thank Dr. Suttles for sharing his knowledge with us. His comments on flora, fauna, placenames, and items of material culture have been very important. We are also indebted to both Dr. Hukari and Dr. Suttles for discussion of loans from English and from Chinook Jargon.

Thanks go to the other Elders and also families of the Elders for their interest in this work. We especially thank Charlotte Aleck, Jenny Bob, Donna Edwards, Geraldine Manson, Agnes Padilla, Steve Sampson, Jr., and Penny Seward. Their commitment will build a bridge to the future for the language. We also thank Benedict Alphonse for visiting our project and sharing his knowledge.

Saving the most important to last, we express our deepest appreciation and affection to the Elders who so generously shared their knowledge of the Hulqumínum language. No thanks can ever be sufficient for the effort that they have put into this project and no book can ever do justice to their knowledge of the language and the culture. Despite illness, accident, and the ever-increasing demands of teaching, working, and serving, they have continued with this project. Sadly, Emily Manson and Wilfred Aleck have been lost to us and we miss them greatly. In their memory and for the sake of generations to come, the work continues.

Introduction

This dictionary represents words from speakers of the Chemainus, Nanaimo, and Nanoose dialects of Hul̓qumínum̓. It is a collective project of research with several elders. Not all words are known or used by all speakers, but each word included here has been recognized by at least one of the Elders in our project.

Usually the words are relevant to speakers of all three dialects, since the dialects are very closely related. They all are members of the larger dialect area known as Island Hul̓qumínum̓. Sometimes, though, the Nanaimo dialect may differ in a vocabulary item or in the pronunciation of a word. We have indicated words of this type by giving the dialect name. Where there is a difference, the Nanoose Elders, due to a shared history with Chemainus, usually have the same word as Chemainus. It should be emphasized, though, that most speakers know both words, since the Elders from all three First Nations are in constant contact and have been interrelated for centuries.

Sometimes different Elders pronounce the same word in different ways, but the difference could not clearly be ascribed to dialect differences. In this case, the two words are both given, separated with a ~ , the variation sign. If more than one word was known for an item, multiple entries were given.

This dictionary is organized into three sections. First, the words are presented by semantic category. We felt that this would be a useful way to present the information for educational purposes. Formatting by semantic category allows teachers and students to concentrate on a topic. Also, it provides an easy way to look up words that are only partially remembered. If you want to find the name of a bird, and you do not know what it is called in either language, you can scan the bird section, reading the descriptions until a match is found. Some of the information in the dictionary, for example the Latin identifications and descriptions of the flora and fauna, are given only in the semantic category section.

The second section gives the Hul̓qumínum̓ words in Hul̓qumínum̓ alphabetical order (see the chart at the bottom of each page in this section) with an English definition. The third section gives a short English look-up word, followed by the Hul̓qumínum̓ word and then followed by the elaborated English definition. The look-up words are very vague, but they allow you to move quickly through the list. The elaborated definition then helps to key into the exact word that you require. The fuller definition also provides information about the part of speech. Verbs are either given infinitival definitions (for example, to go down to the beach) if they are complete forms (that is, used for talking about past events), or they are translated as continuatives (going down to the beach). Transitive verbs are indicated by having a third person object in the definition (to look at him/her). Hul̓qumínum does not distinguish number or gender in its third person forms. So such verbs actually could have objects translated as him, her, it, or them, depending upon the context. We have simply used him/her unless the verb makes more sense with an inanimate or plural object, in which case we used it or them respectively. These conventions, though they make some of the glosses seem awkward, allow us to avoid technical terminology such as verb and transitive.

We have made every effort to list each Hul̓qumínum word under several different English glosses, since the Hul̓qumínum word usually has a range of translations in English. Translation is a messy business. We have tried to indicate a variety of uses for each word so that you can get a feel for the Hul̓qumínum meaning. However, it is always best to consult a native speaker before using a word. They can clarify the exact context for using a word and also explain the nuances and subtleties of the meaning.

Having briefly discussed the features of the dictionary, we should also explain what this dictionary is not. First, it is not a guide to pronouncing the language. We refer you to Hul̓qumínum Phonics and the accompanying tapes if you wish to learn to pronounce Hul̓qumínum. Second, we do not illustrate sentences or grammatical features of the language in the dictionary. We refer you to the two 'i'lhe' xwulmuxwqun textbooks for lessons in whole phrases and sentences. Also there are more technical works by Gerdts, Leslie, and others (see especially the sketch of Hul̓qumínum in the back of the Cowichan Dictionary) that cover aspects of the structure of the language. See the list of references at the end of this introduction.

The dictionary presents only a very few words of the Hul̓qumínum language. Hul̓qumínum, like other Salish languages, is well-known for its complex morphological structure. There are a large number of prefixes and suffixes that can be added to a Hul̓qumínum word to create newer, longer words. Thus, it would probably be impossible to give a complete list of all the words in the language. We have concentrated on nouns—that is names for things—especially items of special cultural significance. We have kept different forms of verbs to a bare minimum, leaving this for a later project, which will focus entirely on Hul̓qumínum verb morphology.

This dictionary not only seeks to cover the basic words of the language, but it also serves as a glossary for the three textbooks mentioned above. We have tried to give all of the words, including all of the complex word forms, that occur in those textbooks.

This work draws heavily upon previous research on Island Hul̓qumínum. The most influential work is the recently published dictionary of the Cowichan dialect by Hukari and Peter. The Cowichan dictionary is a much more substantial work than this one, with many more words and also more technical information about the word. The Cowichan Dictionary came out mid-way through our project and was invaluable as a tool for cross-checking the forms that we had elicited and transcribed. Our work was greatly accelerated by access to this book.

Also important to our project were previous works on the Nanaimo dialect, including the dictionary by Ellen White and the word list by Adrian Leslie. The dictionary by Ellen White, like the Cowichan dictionary, is very useful because each word is illustrated in the context of a sentence. Also, Bouchard's classified word list of Cowichan as spoken by Chris Paul was a very useful source of information.

We gratefully acknowledge the help that we have received from this previous research. Our job has been made considerably lighter thanks to the work of those who have come before. We hope in turn that scholars coming after us will find our work worthy and that Hul̓qumínum language teachers, students, and speakers will find this work useful and interesting.

No doubt, there are errors and omissions in this book. We look forward to your comments and corrections, since our intention is to make an updated and corrected second edition.

Animals

animal • There is no generic word for animal in Hul'qumínum. The word s'kwuyuth 'slave' is used for domestic animals and the word tu'tuluw 'wild' is used for wild animals.

bat slhu'púlé'xun • The name means 'floppy wing'.

[any of numerous species] • Bats are small flying mammals that feed on insects and other small animals.

Seventeen different bat species occur in British Columbia, including several that may be found within the territory.

black bear spe'eth

black bear cub spe'ethallh

[Ursus americanus Pallas] • Black bears may grow to about 6 feet in length and 600 pounds in weight. They feed on many types of plant and animal foods, including berries, insects, and fish. Although most black bears are black with a white chest spot, some black bears are brown, bluish or white.

grizzly bear kwuyucun

[Ursus arctos Linnaeus] • Grizzly bears are larger than black bears, reaching 1,100 pounds in weight. In addition, they range in color from cream to brown to black, often with white-tipped hairs giving them a grizzled appearance. They are found in coastal inlets along the British Columbian coast.

wild beast, fierce thing, ghost, monster stleluqum

beaver squléw

[Castor canadensis Kuhl] • The beaver is a large water-dwelling rodent found throughout British Columbia and much of Canada. Beavers are known for building lodges, or houses, out of logs and sticks that they cut up with their sharp teeth. They eat the bark, roots or leaves of many different trees, shrubs and other smaller plants.

cat poos • From Chinook Jargon.

cat (Nanaimo, Nanoose) pish •

From Chinook Jargon pishpish.

kitten poops

small cats puló'ps

bobcat, wild cat tu'tuluw poos

[Lynx rufus (Schreber)]

chipmunk xux'pícu • The name means 'striped back'.

chipmunk xwíl'chuqs

[Tamias amoenus J.A. Allen (yellow-pine chipmunk) and/or T. townsendii Bachman (Townsend's chipmunk)] • Chipmunks are small members of the squirrel family that have stripes on their backs. They feed on fruits, seeds and insects.

cougar xw'luqtnuc • The name means 'long tail'.

[Felis concolor Linnaeus] • The cougar, or mountain lion, is the largest wild cat in British Columbia. Cougars are adapted to live in a wide range of habitats. They primarily eat deer, but also hunt various other mammals, birds and other wildlife for food.

cow, beef moosmus • From Chinook Jargon.

bull pool • From English.

bull swuy'qe' moosmus

calf moosmusállh

Animals

deer (Chemainus, Nanoose), meat smuyuth

deer (Nanaimo) ha'put • This is an old word.

deer mawuch • From Chinook Jargon.

fawn smuyuthállh

little fawn smim'yuthállh

deers sumíyuth

[Odocoileus hemionus (Rafinesque) (mule deer)] • The mule deer is often called the black-tailed deer in contrast to the larger white-tailed deer of the interior of British Columbia. Mule deers are variable and three subspecies are recognized within British Columbia. Mule deers range in color from reddish-brown to yellowish-brown and eat a variety of plant foods.

dog sqwuméy'

dogs sqwumq'wuméy'

little dog, puppy sqwiq'wmi'

elk kwewe'uc

elk lumlumkwulé'cu' • This is an old word.

[Cervus elaphus Linnaeus] • The elk, sometimes known as wapiti, is a large member of the deer family. Two subspecies are known in British Columbia—one in the Rocky Mountains and another on Vancouver Island. The Vancouver Island type was once more widely distributed, living in the Fraser Delta and some coastal islands.

giraffe íleqtupsum

mountain goat, goat's wool p'qul'quń • 'white hair'.

mountain goat (Nanaimo)

s'xwi'tli'

[Oreamnos americanus (Blainville)] •

The mountain goat is actually an antelope, not closely related to true goats. Mountain goats are widely distributed throughout mountainous regions of British Columbia.

Mountain goat fur may be used for weaving and the meat may be eaten.

horse stiqíw

colt, small horse stitqíw'

foal stiqíwallh

marten x'a'qun

[Martes americana (Turton)] • The marten is a brown, weasel-like animal that is slightly larger than a mink and fluffier in appearance. Martens are carnivores that eat a variety of small mammals, crustaceans, birds and insects. Martens are widely distributed throughout British Columbia and may be found from sea-level to timber-line throughout the year.

mink chuchí'qun'

mink (as trickster in stories)

qeyu'x

little mink (as trickster in stories) qeyu'x

[Mustela vison Schreber] • Minks are dark brown weasel relatives that are rather sleek in appearance with lustrous fur. Unlike the marten, the mink is a good swimmer and is found in association with water. Minks feed upon various freshwater and marine aquatic creatures, including crustaceans, amphibians, reptiles and fishes. They also hunt other small mammals and birds.

Animals

monkey, little monkey mimunkí

• From English.

moose q̓uyí'uc

[Alces alces (Linnaeus)] • The moose is the largest member of the deer family in North America, with adult males reaching 1,200 pounds. Moose dwell in forests, but like to eat the young growth of shrubs and trees in burned-over areas. Moose also feed on a variety of aquatic plants. In former times, moose were common only in northern British Columbia but over the last several decades they have extended their range dramatically in the southern part of the province.

mouse k̓we'tuñ

[Peromyscus maniculatus (Wagner) (deer mouse) and Mus musculus Linnaeus (house mouse)] • This word refers to any mouse, including the native deer mouse as well as the introduced house mouse.

little mouse k̓wek̓wtuñ

river otter sq̓e:ʔl

[Lontra canadensis (Schreber)] • Otters are related to the weasels, mink and marten. River otters are sometimes called land otters to distinguish them from sea otters. River otters swim in freshwater bodies and feed on fish and other animals but live in dens on land.

sea otter tumus

[Enhydra lutris (Linnaeus)] • Sea otters are large marine otters that live almost entirely in the sea. They were once more abundant than now, but were reduced in numbers during the fur trade era. Their pelts are extremely dense and luxurious. Sea otters primarily feed upon sea urchins and molluscs.

pig kwushóo • From Chinook Jargon, from French le cochon.

rabbit sququwéth

[Lepus americanus Erxleben (snowshoe hare) and Sylvilagus floridanus (J.A. Allen) (eastern cottontail)] • This word probably refers to both the snowshoe hare and the eastern cottontail. Both hares and rabbits are small grazing animals. The snowshoe hare is a larger animal than the eastern cottontail, with longer ears and hind legs.

raccoon s̓xuyuk̓wus • The name means 'marked face'.

raccoon (Nanaimo) x̓ul̓x̓úlus

[Procyon lotor (Linnaeus)] • The raccoon is a chunky-looking mammal with a distinctive black mask around its eyes and a striped tail. Raccoons feed upon a large variety of foods, including fish, crustaceans, amphibians, reptiles and various plant foods.

rat hewt

little rat hehuwt

[Neotoma cinerea (Ord) (bushy-tailed woodrat) and Rattus spp. (introduced rats)] • This word probably originally referred to the native bushy-tailed rat but has been extended in modern times to include different species of introduced rats.

sea lion shes

[Eumetopias jubatus (Schreber) (northern sea lion)] • Northern sea lions males may reach 11 feet in length and 2,200 pounds in weight. The females are somewhat smaller. Sea lions may be found all year off the coast of British Columbia where they mainly feed upon various types of fishes.

Animals

fur seal ʔhuyu

[Callorhinus ursinus (Linnaeus) (northern fur seal)] • Adult male fur seals may reach 7 feet in length and 600 pounds in weight with females being slightly smaller. Fur seals spend most of the year at sea in deep waters where they feed on different types of fishes.

seal ʔesxw

[Phoca vitulina Linnaeus (harbor seal)] • The harbor seal is sometimes known as the hair seal. Harbor seals are smaller than fur seals and sea lions, growing to less than 6 feet long and around 300 pounds. These seals are more commonly seen in shallower coastal waters than are fur seals.

sheep lumutóo • From Chinook Jargon, from French le mouton.

mountain sheep, wild sheep

tuʔtuluwʔ lumutóo

[?Ovis canadensis Shaw (bighorn sheep)]

skunk pupuʔhín

[Spilogale putorius Linnaeus (spotted skunk) and possibly also Mephitis mephitis (Schreber) (striped skunk)] • Skunks are members of the same animal family as the weasels, mink, and marten. The spotted skunk is a small black and white mammal, with stripes, spots and other irregular white markings on its body. Striped skunks have distinctive white stripes on their backs. Both types of skunks produce a strong-smelling spray from glands on their body.

squirrel ʔhupsiʔáthuʔ

[Tamiasciurus douglasii (Bachman) (Douglas' squirrel) and/or T.

hudsonicus (Erxleben) (red squirrel)]

• Squirrels are larger relatives of the chipmunks that lack stripes on their backs and climb trees. They like to eat seeds, buds, mushrooms and some fruits. Probably both the Douglas' squirrel and the red squirrel are referred to as ʔhupsiʔáthuʔ.

wolf stq̣e:yeʔ

wolves stuʔq̣é:yeʔ

[Canis lupus Linnaeus (gray wolf)] •

The gray wolf is the largest of the native dog-like carnivores in British Columbia. Wolves are larger and stockier than their close relative, the coyote. They are found in a variety of habitats and prey upon deer, moose and other ungulates.

Birds

bird s̱wulésh

little bird s̱wiq̱wlesh

birds s̱wulq̱wulésh

[any of various species] • There is no generic word for bird in Huḻqum̱ínum. s̱wulésh is sometimes used to mean ‘bird’ in general, but it specifically means only the smaller birds such as songbirds.

big bird thithíws ~ thithuws

big birds thuthuhíws

[any of various species] • This is a general term used to refer to the larger birds, like eagles and many other species, collectively.

red-winged blackbird c̱qwaqwa

[Agelaius phoeniceus (Linnaeus)] • The red-winged blackbird is slightly smaller than a robin. It may be found in swamps and marshes as well as pastures and meadows. Only the male of the species is black with bright red shoulder patches. The female is brownish and streaked in appearance.

chick chichkun

chicken chukun • From English.

chicken, chickens chukuns •

From English.

cormorant lhuthnuc

[Phalacrocorax auritus (Lesson) (double-crested cormorant) and possibly other Phalacrocorax spp.] • Three common and one rare species of cormorants, or shags, are found within British Columbia. This word has been associated with cormorants that are said to nest in trees. The double-crested cormorant is the only local cormorant known to include trees as nesting sites. It is also known from archaeological sites throughout the Strait of Georgia, indicating its presence there for 5,000 years. This bird formerly was hunted and eaten, but its tough meat was not considered a favorite food.

sandhill crane sli:m

[Grus canadensis (Linnaeus)] • The sandhill crane is a very tall bird, with a long neck and legs. This bird is mostly grey, the adults having a red forehead. The Huḻqum̱ínum name for sandhill crane is the basis of the name for the month of April (Ii:mus), the time when these birds are most abundant locally.

crow q̱ulé:q̱e' ~ q̱ulé'uq̱e'

[Corvus caurinus Baird] • The northwestern crow is closely related to the raven and Steller's jay. It is similar in appearance to the raven, but smaller. Northwestern crows eat a variety of marine invertebrates and insects, but will also attack the eggs and nestlings of other birds.

duck, waterfowl ma'aqw

little duck, duckling mi̱muqw

duckling ma'aqwallh

[various species of Anatidae and other bird families] • This word refers in general to all ducks (like the mallard) and many other aquatic duck-like birds (like the common murre and common loon). In the past, many types of ducks were caught for food in nets made of red cedar inner bark. Some speakers also use this term to refer to domestic chickens.

Birds

goldeneye duck sx wuyum

[Bucephala clangula (Linnaeus) (common goldeneye) and B. islandica (Gmelin) (Barrow's goldeneye)] • Both the common goldeneye and the more abundant Barrow's goldeneye are common along the coast during winter, breeding inland during the spring and summer months. These species are very similar in appearance and this word seems to refer to both.

mallard tunuqsun

[Anas platyrhynchos Linnaeus] • Mallards are common ducks that often become tame where they have regular contact with humans, such as in cities and towns. The male mallard has a greyish body, chestnut breast, white neck ring and distinctive green head. The female is mottled brown with a white tail. Mallards are a traditional food.

merganser (common) ǰwa:ǰw

[Mergus merganser Linnaeus] • Many speakers regard this word as the name for both male and female common mergansers. Mergansers are also known as “sawbills” because they have saw-like teeth along the edges of their beaks, which they used to catch fish. The male has white sides and breast, a green head and a red bill. The female is grey with a white throat and long reddish-brown head feathers.

drake merganser qumut • This is a male merganser. The species is unidentified.

oldsquaw 'a'ańí'

oldsquaw (Nanaimo) 'a'áwi

[Clangula hyemalis (Linnaeus)] • Oldsquaw ducks are boldly patterned in black and white. The males have very long central tail feathers. They are generally uncommon on the coast during the summer but may be very numerous during the Pacific herring spawning season, forming concentrations in the thousands. Some speakers say that in the old days young people were told not to shoot oldsquaws, which they regarded as a rare bird.

golden eagle ćusqun

[Aquila chrysaetos (Linnaeus)] • The golden eagle has a dark brown body with golden on the back of the head and neck. Golden eagles breed on southeastern Vancouver Island, where they may be observed year round. They feed primarily on rabbits and large rodents. The feathers were especially prized and used in dance costumes.

bald eagle yuǰwule'

eagles huyíǰwule'

eaglet yi'ǰwule'

[Haliaeetus leucocephalus (Linnaeus)] • Bald eagles are similar in size to golden eagles, but with shorter bodies and longer wingspans. Adult bald eagles have white head feathers, while the young are brown all over. They are more widely distributed along the coast than golden eagles and feed mainly on fish.

goose ǰleǰwuǰun • The name means 'long wing'.

[various types of domestic Anatidae] • Domestic geese are introduced to

Birds

British Columbia. This word is used to refer to domestic geese, but it originally referred to native geese, such as the snow goose, Chen caerulescens (Linnaeus). Snow geese are most abundant along the southern coast from fall to spring.

brant ʃulʃuɫʃ

[Branta bernicla (Linnaeus)] • The brant, or brant goose, is similar to the Canada goose but is smaller, darker and shorter-necked. Their diet mainly consists of eelgrass and other marine plants.

Canada goose 'eʃu

[Branta canadensis (Linnaeus)] • Canada geese are large birds that fly in V-shaped migrating flocks, honking distinctively and loudly. They feed on marsh vegetation and graze in fields.

grebe shxw'uɫɛc • This is an unidentified species of grebe, perhaps the horned grebe, that is similar to the Western grebe but smaller.

western grebe skwulkwɫh

[Aechmophorus occidentalis (Lawrence)] • The western grebe is a large, slender grebe with a very long neck. The back of the head, neck and body are dark while the undersides are white. This bird is locally known by various names, such as “diver”, “long-necked diver”, and “helldiver”. Western grebes may be observed year round on the southern coast of British Columbia but are said to be good to eat only during December and January.

blue grouse mi:t

little blue grouse memi:t ~ mimi:t

[Dendragapus obscurus (Say)] •

Male blue grouse are grey to bluish-grey in color. The females are mottled brown. During the winter, blue grouse feed on conifer needles. During the summer they feed on berries, seeds and insects. Male blue grouse produce a series of distinctive deep hooting sounds to attract females of the species. Blue grouse are considered good to eat, either barbecued or made into soup.

ruffed grouse stixwum

[Bonasa umbellus (Linnaeus)] • Male blue grouse are grey to bluish-grey in color. The females are mottled brown. During the winter, blue grouse feed on conifer needles. During the summer they feed on berries, seeds and insects. Male blue grouse produce a series of distinctive deep hooting sounds to attract females of the species. Blue grouse are considered good to eat, either barbecued or made into soup.

hawk ʃuʃuméls ~ ʃixuméls •

This name means ‘grabbing’.
[various species of Accipitridae] • Hawks are members of the bird family that includes the eagles and osprey. They are predators, with hooked bills and sharply pointed talons. This word refers to any of the numerous relatively small local hawks.

[Ardea herodias Linnaeus] • The great blue heron is a large, mainly greyish bird that may be mistaken for the sandhill crane. One difference is that the great blue heron flies with its neck folded, unlike the sandhill crane, which flies with its neck extended.

Birds

hummingbird sǎwut'culi ~ sǎwun'culi

[Selasphorus rufus (Gmelin)] • Several hummingbirds are known to occur within the territory but only the rufous hummingbird is common. The male is rufous (reddish) with an iridescent orange-red throat. The female is reddish with a green back. Rufous hummingbirds feed upon spiders and tree sap. They build moss and lichen-covered nests of plant down and spiderwebs.

blue jay skwihuc

[Cyanocitta stelleri (Gmelin) (Steller's jay)] • Steller's jay, locally well-known as "blue jay", is between a crow and a robin in size. The Steller's jay has beautiful blue on its body, and black feathers in the head crest.

kingfisher thuchélu

[Ceryle alcyon (Linnaeus)] • The belted kingfisher is a pigeon-sized bird with blue-grey feathers above, white ones below and a head crest. These birds make a loud, penetrating, rattling call, both when perched and when flying between perches. They are found around rivers, lakes and saltwater estuaries where they catch fish, frogs and aquatic reptiles.

common loon (breeding phase)

swakwun

[Gavia immer (Brünnich)] • Loons are excellent divers that feed mainly on fish. The common loon occurs throughout British Columbia. During the summer, small flocks of loons may be found in bays and coves, and on lakes. In breeding plumage, the common loon has a black head and back with white bands on the back. During the winter, common loons are dark greyish above, with white underparts and are more widely distributed than in summer.

Pacific loon (winter phase)

xwíkwus • The name means 'grey head'.

[Gavia pacifica (Lawrence)] • During winter the Pacific loon is blackish above and white below. In breeding plumage, the head is pale grey, the neck and back are black with white stripes, and the throat is black with purple reflections. The winter phase birds were a traditional food resource. They were hunted from December to February.

murre sǎe:th

[Uria aalge (Pontoppidan)] •

Common murrelets belong to a group of chunky, penguin-like seabirds known as the alcids. Typical of the alcids, murrelets breed on rocky cliffs, laying their eggs on bare rock or soil. These birds are said to be very good to eat, either barbecued or boiled in a box or basket. They were formerly served at some feasts, dances and funerals.

bird's nest shǎwulshélu

nighthawk pi:q̣ ~ pi:yuq̣

[Chordeiles minor (Forster)] •

Nighthawks are summer visitors to British Columbia. These jay-sized birds form large flocks in late summer as they prepare for their autumn departure. At this time they are particularly noticeable feeding in late afternoon and early evening. The name mimics the call of the nighthawk.

Birds

nightingale shapshup •

Unidentified bird that sings at night in a song that seems to disappear as the bird moves about. It gets its name from shap ‘to whistle’. It is really rare. It found only at the very tops of trees up in the mountains.

osprey thixwthuxw

[Pandion haliaetus (Linnaeus)] • The osprey is a member of the bird family that includes the eagles and hawks. Often called “fishhawk”, the osprey flies and hovers over water looking for fish. When it sees one, the osprey dives steeply and hits the surface of the water with its talons outstretched to catch the fish.

great horned owl ci:tmuxw ~ cucí:tmuxw

[Bubo virginianus (Gmelin)] • This is the largest and best known of the common owls. Great horned owls are dark brown and grey with mottling and streaks below and ear-tufts or “horns”. They feed on a variety of mammals and other birds. The distinctive “hoo-hoo-hoo” call of this species gives rise to another common name: “hoot owl”.

snowy owl muqmuqé’ • The name means ‘snowy’.

[Nyctea scandiaca (Linnaeus)] • This large, nearly all white owl is a winter visitor to British Columbia. It is a traditional belief that a severe winter is indicated by the early arrival of snowy owls. During the winter months in southern coastal British Columbia, snowy owls eat mainly waterfowl, such as horned grebes and buffleheads.

screech owl (western), ghost

spulqwíthe’ ~
spupulqwíthe’

[Otus kennicottii (Elliot)] • The western screech-owl is a mottled grey medium-sized owl with ear tufts. It is locally known as the “whistling owl”. Screech-owls feed on various small animals, including insects, small mammals and other small vertebrates. The name for this owl also means ‘ghost’.

northern saw-whet owl sqwa:xw ~ sxwa:xw

[Aegolius acadicus (Gmelin)] • It said that if a hunter holds out his finger and the owl jumps on it, he will be very lucky. • This is the smallest of the common local owls, reaching a maximum size of 7 inches. This tiny owl lacks the ear-tufts or “horns” of other local owls, and is brown above and white with rufous (reddish) streaks on the breast. Saw-whet owls feed on mice and other small rodents.

ring-necked pheasant pesuns ~ fesuns • From English.

[Phasianus colchicus Linnaeus] • The pheasant is a beautifully colored game bird that is introduced in British Columbia where it has become established in the wild. These birds were introduced from England and China between 1882–1920.

Birds

pigeon humá

[Columba fasciata Say (band-tailed pigeon) and C. livia Gmelin (rock dove)] • This term originally referred only to the native band-tailed pigeon. Now it also is used to refer to introduced rock doves, commonly known as pigeons. The native pigeon used to be eaten.

quail kwil • From English.

[Callipepla californica (Shaw) (California quail) and Oreortyx pictus (Douglas) (mountain quail)] • The California quail was introduced to British Columbia as early as the 1860s. It is known that the mountain quail was also introduced into the province during this time, but it is thought that this quail may be a native bird. Both quails occur in the southeastern portion of Vancouver Island, the mountain quail being more restricted to the extreme southeast.

raven spa:l

[Corvus corax Linnaeus] • This common bird is similar to the northwestern crow, but larger and with a heavier beak. Ravens are intelligent birds that can produce various calls. They will feed on a variety of foods.

robin skwqequ ~ skwqeqe

[Turdus migratorius Linnaeus] • The robin is a well-known and common bird, noted for its brick red breast and regular appearance in lawns and numerous other habitats.

white-winged scoter čewi'eḡun •

The name means 'shells on wing'.

[Melanitta fusca (Linnaeus)] • The white-winged scoter is unique among the three local scoter species—or “black ducks”—in having distinctive white wing patches. Actually, only the male of this species is black, the female being dull brown but also with white wing patches. White-winged scoters formerly were caught in nets made of red cedar inner bark. They are an important traditional food source, prepared in soups or by roasting.

seagull qwuní

[Larus spp., especially L. canus Linnaeus (mew gull) and L. glaucescens Naumann (glaucous-winged gull)] • Twenty species of gulls are known to British Columbia. Two species—mew gull and glaucous-winged gull—are very common and breed within the Hulqumínum territory. The last of these species—the glaucous-winged gull—is widely known as the “seagull” of British Columbia. Gull eggs, likely mainly of mew gull and glaucous-winged gull, were formerly gathered for food during June and July.

seagull (Nanaimo) q̄wulítuq̄

swallow q̄wuq̄wsícun̄ ~

q̄wuq̄wsúcuñ

[Hirundo rustica Linnaeus (barn swallow), Tachycineta bicolor (Vieillot) (tree swallow) and possibly also T. thalassina (Swainson) (violet-green swallow)] • Swallows are expert fliers that feed on the wing. Although six species of swallows occur within the territory, speakers commonly recognize two types: those with a red breast and black back (barn swallow) and those with a white breast (tree swallow and possibly also violet-green swallow).

swan sxwuḡqun

[Cygnus buccinator Richardson (trumpeter swan) and possibly also the less common C. columbianus (Ord) (tundra swan)] • Swans are large members of the bird family that includes ducks and geese. Both the tundra swan and the larger and more abundant trumpeter swan are all white and relatively common during the winter. This word likely refers to both these species.

Swainson's thrush sxwut

[Catharus ustulatus (Nuttall)] • This identification is tentative. This bird is said to sing: "Please Mr. Salmon, let the salmonberries ripen."

rufous-sided towhee sḡe:sh

[Pipilo erythrophthalmus (Linnaeus)] • Rufous-sided towhees are somewhat similar in appearance to robins, but smaller and with other differences. The male has a black hood, back and wings while the female has the same pattern, but with brown. Both the male and female have white spots on the wings, a white breast, and reddish sides. Towhees have red eyes.

turkey tulki • From English.

[Meleagris gallopavo Linnaeus] • The wild turkey is a native North American bird that has been introduced into British Columbia, including southern Vancouver Island. Domestic turkeys are derived from this species.

turkey vulture pe:l̥h

[Cathartes aura (Linnaeus)] • Eagle-sized and blackish, the turkey vulture is usually seen soaring in the air where it can ride thermal currents relatively effortlessly for hours.

Turkey vultures feed on virtually any kind of carrion they can locate. Like other vultures, the turkey vulture has a bare head, which in this species is red.

sapsucker, woodpecker ćutum̥

[unidentified species or sapsucker, or maybe hairy or downy woodpecker] • This is the smallest of the woodpeckers. Some say this is a rare little bird with three stripes on the back and a long beak. Some say it has a red spot on its head. It's said that if one hears three strikes of this bird on a tree, then the tree will fall down.

pileated woodpecker

tumulhupsum • This name means 'ochre neck'.

[Dryocopus pileatus (Linnaeus)] •

The pileated woodpecker is the largest and most distinctive of the local woodpeckers.

flicker (northern) ḡhiqt

[Colaptes auratus (Linnaeus)] • The flicker is a large, brownish woodpecker characterized by a spotted breast with a dark crescent on the upper breast. They are especially fond of ants, but will also eat plant foods, including seeds and berries. The call of the flicker is said by some speakers to be a sign of bad news to come.

wren t̥ut̥um̥

Birds

wren ʔutumiye' • The story name for wren.

[unidentified, but perhaps Troglodytes troglodytes (Linnaeus) (winter wren) or Junco hyemalis (Linnaeus) (dark-eyed junco)] • These are described as little birds with black heads that come in the winter time and travel in a flock. Cold weather is coming when they come down from the mountains.

Plants

alder kwulála'ulhp

[Alnus rubra Bong.] • Red alder bark may be boiled to yield a dye or to be used as medicine. The wood may be used for smoking fish.

arbutus qa:nlhp

[Arbutus menziesii Pursh] • Arbutus is a somewhat unusual tree because of its bark, which naturally peels off and away from the trunk and branches. The leaves or inner bark of arbutus may be chewed for toothache and stomach problems.

aspen ǰwuyulushulhp

[Populus tremuloides Michx.] • The leaves of this tree are said to dance, because of the way they move in the wind. This movement is due to the flat leaf stalks of this species, which allow the leaves to flutter in the slightest breeze.

balsam ǰa'xw

[Abies grandis (Dougl. ex D. Don in Lamb.) Lindl.]

balsam tree ǰa'xwulhp

[Abies grandis (Dougl. ex D. Don in Lamb.) Lindl.] • The tree known locally as “balsam” (also referred to as “grand fir”) has pitchy bark that may be used for medicinal purposes.

tree bark ǰuli'

little berries sǰhi'thóo:m

blackberry, blackberries

sǰwiłmuxw

[Rubus ursinus Cham. & Schlecht. (Pacific trailing blackberry)] • This is the only native blackberry species in British Columbia. The fruits are edible and the leaves, after they have turned reddish, may be used to make a tea. This plant grows abundantly where fires have occurred.

branch sǰushtucus

bushes shishuǰ

camas spe:nxw

[Camassia leichtlinii (Baker) S. Wats. (great camas) and/or C. quamash (Pursh) Greene (common camas)] • Camas bulbs may be roasted and eaten, and are said to be sweet and chewy. They have been gathered from island bluffs and baked, steamed or roasted in hot ashes, or mashed and formed into patties and then roasted on special flat rocks at the edge of the fire.

carrot shewuq

• The plant species originally referred to as shewuq has not been identified with certainty, but is said to grow along road sides. The name shewuq is now also used to refer to garden carrots.

cascara ǰeǰǰulhp

[Rhamnus purshiana DC.] • Cascara is a relatively small tree said to grow in low, wet ground. The bark may be used as a laxative medicine.

cattail, bulrush sǰhequn

[Typha latifolia L. (common cattail or common bulrush)] • Cattails grow in marshes, ponds, lakeshores, and wet ditches. They have long, flat, narrow leaves and produce tiny flowers on tall spikes that resemble a cat's tail. Cattails have been used for sleeping mats when camping.

Plants

yellow cedar pashuluqw

[Chamaecyparis nootkatensis (D. Don in Lamb.) Spach] • Canoes and paddles have been made from yellow cedar wood. In the case of paddles, the wood must first be seasoned for one year.

cedar ḡpeḡ

cedar boughs ḡpeḡcus

[Thuja plicata Donn ex D. Don in Lamb.] • Red cedar wood has been used for various items including houses, canoes, and spreaders used when barbecuing salmon.

cedar tree ḡpeḡulhp

[Thuja plicata Donn ex D. Don in Lamb.] • The red cedar is a tremendously important species. Its wood and inner bark have been especially prized for making numerous items.

cedar boughs qwułucus

inner cedar bark sluwíʔ

[Thuja plicata Donn ex D. Don in Lamb.] • The inner bark of red cedar may be used for clothing, hats, ropes, headbands and headdresses. In the past, butter clams were strung onto strips of red cedar inner bark to dry over a fire.

cedar branches stućem • These are split and used for baskets.

wild cherry bark ḡulum

[Prunus emarginata (Dougl.) Walp.] • The inner bark of bitter cherry has been used as an internal medicine for various respiratory ailments and as an external medicine, as it is considered to be good in the treatment of infection. The flexible yet strong outer bark has been used as a wrapping to attach points to fishing spear or harpoon shafts.

wild cherry tree ḡulumulhp

[Prunus emarginata (Dougl.) Walp.] • Bitter cherry, locally called wild cherry, has smooth, shiny bark and produces small, bitter fruits that are inedible.

chokecherry ḡhuḡwuḡ

cone of tree, for example, pine ḡisuc

Indian consumption plant

ḡuḡmín

[Lomatium nudicaule (Pursh) Coult. & Rose] • Indian consumption plant, usually known only by its Hulḡumínun name, is a small herb that grows in dry, open, often pebbly to sandy areas. It has yellow flowers that develop into small, flat fruits that resemble rolled oats and are usually thought of as “seeds”. These “seeds” often are used as medicine for respiratory conditions and are highly valued.

corn kwa:n • From English.

cow-parsnip sa:ḡw

[Heracleum lanatum Michx.] • Cow-parsnip is a large, herbaceous plant that produces large clusters of white flowers followed by small, flat seed-like fruits. The hollow stems and solid leaf stalks of this plant are edible, once peeled to remove the skin. The term sa:ḡw seems to refer to the entire plant of cow-parsnip.

Plants

cow-parsnip (edible part) ya:la'

• Cow-parsnip stems and leaf stalks are edible when peeled. They must be peeled before they are eaten to remove the outer skin, which can cause skin irritation upon contact with bare, moist skin in the presence of sunlight. The term ya:la applies to the edible portion of cow-parsnips, possibly both the stems and the leaf stalks.

crab apple qwa'ap

[Malus fusca (Raf.) Schneid.] • Crab apples are small, egg-shaped fruits that turn from yellowish to reddish when ripe. They are tart, but edible.

crab apple tree qwa'upulhp

[Malus fusca (Raf.) Schneid.] • The crab apple tree (or large shrub) may be found near the edges of moist woods and bodies of water. It has spiny stems, white flowers and tart fruits.

cranberry małsum

[Vaccinium sp.] • Some speakers say this is a large, round marsh blueberry.

cranberry qwumcałs

[Oxycoccus oxycoccus (L.) MacM.] • This berry is described as red and cherry-sized.

currant spe'ełh

[Ribes bracteosum Dougl. ex Hook. (stink currant)]

devil's club qwa'pulhp

[Oplopanax horridus (Smith) Miq.] • Devil's club is the source of a medicine said to be good for "whatever ails you". It is sometimes combined with other plants for medicine, such as red alder, black raspberry and Indian consumption plant.

dogwood kwi'tłulhp

[Cornus nuttallii Aud. ex T.&G. (western flowering or Pacific dogwood)] • This much-branched, rather irregularly-shaped tree bears tiny flowers that are surrounded by large, white, showy petal-like bracts. The flowers are followed by the development of large, tight clusters of bright red berry-like fruits. Dogwood trees are limited in their distribution to most of Vancouver Island and the adjacent mainland as well as the rivers and inlets of the south coast of the province.

fir (Douglas-fir) wood cseý

[Pseudotsuga menziesii (Mirb.) Franco] • Douglas-fir wood has been used for the shafts of fishing spears and harpoons. The bark from old snags is said to be a good fuel for fires.

red elderberries łhiwuq

[Sambucus racemosa L.] • Red elderberry is a large shrub that produces creamy white flowers and large clusters of small red berries. The fruits are edible, but are cooked before eating.

blue elderberries łhuykwikw

[Sambucus cerulea Raf.] • Blue elderberry is found on southern Vancouver Island and the adjacent mainland of British Columbia. It is similar to red elderberry, but bears blue fruits covered with a whitish coating.

Plants

bracken fern suqé:n ~ thuqé:n

[Pteridium aquilinum (L.) Kuhn] •

This common fern dies back in the fall, leaving its brown, wilted leaves on the ground throughout the winter. The fresh leaves have been used for wiping the slime from salmon and as an undermat when cleaning fish. The thick, underground, root-like stems have been used for food.

licorice fern łlusíp

[Polypodium glycyrrhiza D.C. Eaton]

• This fern is a small to medium-sized plant with evergreen leaves. It grows on wet, mossy ground, logs and rocks and is often found growing on the trunks and branches of trees, especially those of bigleaf maples.

The root-like stem is sweetish with a flavor similar to that of licorice and is chewed for sore throat.

hazelnut p'qwa'xw

[Corylus cornuta Marsh. var. cornuta]

• Hazelnuts are spherical edible nuts that are borne in tubular husks. They are produced on shrubs that occur in a variety of habitats within southernmost Vancouver Island.

hemlock thqinlhp

[Tsuga heterophylla (Raf.) Sarg.] •

Western hemlock is a common and characteristic tree species of coastal British Columbia. This tree has very small cones, and short, feathery needles.

honeysuckle qita'ulhp

[Lonicera ciliosa (Pursh) DC.] • The western trumpet honeysuckle is only found in the southern part of the province. It is a climbing vine that bears orange-yellow tubular trumpet-shaped flowers that develop into orange-red berries.

horsetail xum'xum

[Equisetum arvense L.] • Horsetails are primitive plants that are closely related to ferns, despite their quite different overall appearance. The common horsetail is extremely widespread and often occurs in populated areas as a garden weed. This plant produces bushy-looking, branched stems that are green and separate brownish, unbranched stems that bear the reproductive spores.

Plants

red huckleberry s̑wuqwcus

[Vaccinium parvifolium Sm. in Rees]

• Red huckleberries grow from moist to dry forests at a range of elevations. The small, red fruits are a traditional food. They may be eaten fresh or cooked and made into jam.

juniper p̑thuné'ulhp

[Juniperus scopulorum Sarg.] • The Rocky Mountain juniper occurs primarily in the southern interior of the province, but also may be found in dry, rocky places in the Strait of Georgia. This shrubby tree is notable for its prickly needles and berry-like fleshy cones. Locally, this species is referred to simply as juniper, or sometimes as “pencil cedar”.

Labrador tea bush me'xwulhp [Ledum groenlandicum Oeder] • This small, much-branched evergreen shrub bears long, often drooping leaves that are covered with dense, rusty hairs on their lower surface. The clustered white flowers produce small, drooping capsules. The leaves of this bog-loving plant may be used to make a fragrant tea.

vine maple pene'ulhp

[?Acer glabrum Torr. (Douglas or Rocky Mountain maple)] • The tree usually referred to as “vine maple” is probably actually the Douglas or Rocky Mountain maple. Its wood has been used for dancing masks and knitting needles, among other things.

The true vine maple (Acer circinatum Pursh) is far less common than Douglas maple on Vancouver Island.

maple tree q̑mum̑ulhp ~ q̑mum̑ulhp

[Acer macrophyllum Pursh (bigleaf or Oregon maple)] • Bigleaf maple wood has been used for paddles, bowls, spoons, utensils, for carving and to smoke fish. The “sap” (cambium), removed from the layer between the bark and the wood, has been eaten. The winged fruits, which fly through the air like a whirlybird, have been used as a lure for fishing lingcod (Ophiodon elongatus) and “red snapper” (or yelloweye rockfish, Sebastes ruberrimus). The large leaves have been used as an undermat for drying some edible fruits and roots.

Plants

oak ʔxwulhp ~ p̓xwulhp

[Quercus garryana Dougl.] • The only native oak in British Columbia is the Garry oak, sometimes also known as the Oregon white oak. Like all oaks, the Garry oak produces an acorn—a nut with an associated cup-like structure at the base.

oats luwén • From French l'avoine.

ocean spray qethulhp

[Holodiscus discolor (Pursh) Maxim.] • Ocean spray grows all over Vancouver Island and on parts of the adjacent mainland of British Columbia. These shrubs produce large drooping clusters of white to cream flowers that turn brown and stay on the plants all winter. The wood of this shrub has been used for drying and barbecuing clams and fish and to make knitting needles.

Oregon-grape (dull) lulućulhp

[Mahonia nervosa (Pursh) Nutt.] • Dull Oregon-grape is a small shrub that like its close relative—tall Oregon-grape—produces yellow flowers and blue berries. The dull Oregon-grape is shorter and grows in a variety of forest conditions ranged from dry to fairly moist and at low to middle elevations. As with the tall Oregon-grape, the leaves of dull Oregon-grape have spiny teeth at their edges, somewhat like those of English holly. This plant is used to make yellow dye.

Oregon-grape (tall) sunni'ulhp

[Mahonia aquifolium (Pursh) Nutt.] • Two species of Oregon-grape grow

within the Hul̓qum̓ín̓um̓ territory.

Tall Oregon-grape is a larger shrub that typically grows in drier, more open and often rocky areas than the dull Oregon-grape. Both species produce yellow flowers and blue berries. A decoction of Oregon-grape roots is used as an eyewash for swollen eyes and as an arthritis medicine.

peas ʔlikwuñ

pitch, chewing gum chumuḥ plantain (common or broad-leaved) s̓xu'ən xwé:n

[Plantago major L.] • Common plantain is a widespread introduced plant that regularly occurs as a weed in lawns as well as along roadsides and elsewhere. It is commonly locally referred to as “frog leaf”. The leaves of this plant have been used as a poultice for sores and wounds.

raspberry culqáma'

[? Rubus leucodermis Dougl. ex T. & G.] • Black raspberries, sometimes called “blackcaps”, are edible. In addition, this plant has been used for medicine when combined with other medicinal plants.

Huḷqumínum territory. The term qe'iq probably applies to any of these plants.

wild rose bush qe'iqulhp

[Rosa gymnocarpa Nutt. in T.&G. (baldhip rose), R. nutkana Presl var. nutkana (Nootka rose) and/or R. pisocarpa A. Gray (clustered wild rose, or peafruit rose)] • Several wild rose species are found within the Huḷqumínum territory. The term qe'iq probably applies to any of these plants.

salal berries teqe'

[Gaultheria shallon Pursh] • Salal bushes have thick, leathery leaves that stay green all year long. The dark purple fruits are edible.

salmonberry lila'

salmonberry bush lila'ulhp

[Rubus spectabilis Pursh] • Salmonberry shrubs produce pink to reddish-purple flowers and edible fruits that range in color from yellow to red to purple.

saskatoon berry tushnéc ~ shtushnéc

[Amelanchier alnifolia (Nutt.) Nutt.] • Saskatoon berries are purple to nearly black fruits that are edible and sweet.

saskatoon berry bush

tushnéculhp [Amelanchier alnifolia (Nutt.) Nutt.] • Saskatoon berry plants range in size from small shrubs to small trees that produce large, white, showy blossoms. They are widely distributed in coastal British Columbia, including all of Vancouver Island.

seed, something planted spu'num skunk cabbage caqwa'

[Lysichiton americanum Hult. & St. John] • This plant of swamps, bogs and other moist sites is so-named because of the strong odor produced by the flowers. These flowers are tiny and borne on a vertical stalk that is hooded by a distinctive bright yellow bract, or modified leaf. The elongated leaves, which may be very large, were used as an undermat for drying berries.

soapberry (fruit) s'xwesum

[Shepherdia canadensis (L.) Nutt.] • Soapberries contain a natural detergent-like substance that makes them soapy and bitter. Because of this, they can be whipped into a frothy mass, something like whipped cream. Soapberries may be gathered on southern Vancouver Island or obtained through trade then whipped with sugar and eaten.

soapberry bush x'wesumulhp

[Shepherdia canadensis (L.) Nutt.] • Soapberry bushes grow on southern Vancouver Island and may also be found on the mainland in inner coastal valleys to the north.

spirea te'culhp

[Spiraea douglasii Hook.] • Spirea, or hardhack, is a thicket-forming shrub that produces tiny pink flowers in dense clusters. The wood has been used to make spreaders when smoking fish.

thimbleberry tuqwuḿ

[Rubus parviflorus Nutt.] •

Thimbleberries are red and very sweet. Because they are not particularly juicy, they are easy to preserve. They may be eaten fresh or preserved by drying or canning, or made into jam.

thistle x̣uḿx̣uḿí:nlhp

[Cirsium ?brevistylum Cronq. (short-styled thistle)] • This native thistle

(and other introduced species) have sharply spiny leaves. The term x̣uḿx̣uḿí:nlhp refers to thistles, probably including any native or introduced species.

wapato sqewth

[Sagittaria latifolia Willd. var.

latifolia] • This aquatic plant grows from tuber-producing rhizomes and produces arrowhead-shaped leaves and white flowers. Both the tubers (potato-like structures) and rhizomes (specialized stems) are starchy and edible. This word also applies to the introduced potato.

waxberry, snowberry p̓i'p̓q̓i'ás

[Symphoricarpos albus (L.) Blake] •

Waxberry, or snowberry, is a shrub that produces small pink to white flowers followed by white berry-like fruits. These fruits stay on the shrub well into the winter. An infusion of the bark was used as an eyewash.

abalone qumine'

[Haliotis kamtschatkana Jonas] • The northern abalone has been collected for food from beaches at various clam beds. It was formerly available at Oak Bay.

abalone shell s'eyuw'

[Haliotis spp.] • The beautifully iridescent inner shell material from various non-native species of abalone, including H. rufescens, has been used for decorative purposes. These shells were obtained by coastal First Nations through extensive trade routes.

barnacle thumáyu

[Balanus spp.] • Barnacles are crab relatives that live within stony shelters that they attach to rocks, pilings and other surfaces. The term thumáyu refers to any of various local species.

bladderwrack kelp, rockweed

q'waqwuwq

[Fucus gardneri Silva] •

Bladderwrack kelp is a widespread seaweed that occurs on rocks in the mid-intertidal zone from Alaska to California.

bullhead skwuńéxw

[Myoxocephalus polyacanthocephalus (Pallas)] • There are several species of saltwater and freshwater fishes known locally as “bullheads”. This word refers to the largest of the saltwater bullheads, the great sculpin.

bullhead smutxw ~ shmudxw

[Cottus spp. (sculpins, e.g. C. aleuticus Gilbert (coastrange sculpin))]

• This term is said to be the name for small “freshwater bullheads” or “river bullheads”, but may also be considered by some speakers to refer to small saltwater bullheads. Children would fish for these tiny bullheads for fun.

china (dishes), clam or oyster shell céwi'

• This term refers to any bivalve shell (including those of cockles, butter clams, and littleneck clams). It also is used to refer to china dishes, which are likened to bivalve shells.

black Katy chiton xulum

[Katharina tunicata (Wood)] • The black Katy chiton is a small, slow-moving mollusc whose 8 shell plates are partly exposed by the surrounding black fleshy girdle. Black Katy chitons graze algae on rocks in the mid-intertidal zone in wave-swept locations. These chitons were formerly gathered in the Victoria area for food and cooked by boiling. They are sometimes referred to as “Chinese slippers” or “sea prunes”.

chiton, China slipper 'uk'ws

[Cryptochiton stelleri (Middendorff)]

• The giant Pacific chiton is the largest chiton in the world, up to several times larger than the black Katy chiton. It also differs from the black Katy chiton in that its shell plates are completely covered by its reddish-brown girdle. This chiton is also edible after being boiled for a short time. It is locally known as “China slipper” and also as gumboot chiton.

Sea Life

geoduck puné'q

[Panopea abrupta (Conrad)] • The geoduck (pronounced “gooeyduck”, reportedly from a Chinook Jargon term) is the largest intertidal clam in the world. Its neck and siphons (or “nose”, according to some elders) are so long that they cannot be withdrawn into the shell. This species does not occur in the Nanaimo area, but was harvested elsewhere especially during January. Hence, some people use this word to refer to the month of January.

horse clam swe:m

horse clam shell swe:m un

[Tresus capax (Gould) and/or T. nuttalli (Conrad)] • Two species of Tresus are commonly called gapers or horse clams and both are gathered for food. However T. capax is more frequently used by First Nations people than the related T. nuttalli. These clams are larger than all other clams in the area except the geoduck.

butter clam s'aǰwa'

[Saxidomus gigantea (Deshayes)] • Butter clams are smaller than horse clams but larger than littleneck clams. They are abundant, and a popular food clam.

littleneck clam skwlheý

[Protothaca staminea (Conrad)] • Native littleneck clams, sometimes locally called simply “necks”, are the smallest of the local clams used for food. They are similar to the introduced Japanese littleneck clam (Venerupis japonica Deshayes).

cockle stlulá'am

[Clinocardium nuttalli (Conrad)] •

The cockle is a popular edible mollusc. Cockle shells are strongly ribbed, with yellow to brown bands of color across the ribs.

Pacific cod, gray cod

qwini'uthun • The name means ‘whisker’.

[Gadus macrocephalus Tilesius] •

The Pacific cod looks like a lingcod but with whisker-like barbels on its chin.

rock cod tǰas

rock cod (Nanaimo)

xwiya'thuwíc

[Sebastes caurinus Richardson] • The copper rockfish has been identified as the “rock cod” spoken of by many speakers. It is called rock cod because this fish is said to like to stay around underwater cliffs and other rocky formations. This fish varies in color from dark brown or olive to various shades of pink, to red to orange with yellowish patches and a white stripe down the side. It can be smoked, barbecued, boiled or fried and is tasty when used to make fish and chips.

tommy cod t̄humukwa'

[Hexagrammos lagocephalus

(Pallas)] • The fish known as “tommy cod” seems to be the rock greenling although some speakers have also associated the term t̄humukwa with other closely related species of greenlings. Rock greenlings vary in color, usually from greenish to brownish with dark mottling. Adult males usually have distinctive red blotches on their sides. Tommy cods are said to be found in patches of bull kelp (Nereocystis luetkeana). Some families ate this fish, while others used it as bait for large cods. For bait, the tommy cod would be weighted with a rock in its mouth, then scratched along its sides so that it would wriggle underwater to attract other larger fish.

Sea Life

lingcod (Chemainus, Nanoose)

'e:yt

lingcod (Nanaimo) s'hx̣em

cod eggs (lingcod roe) x̣u'ýx̣ú'ýtl

[Ophiodon elongatus Girard] • The lingcod may grow to 100 pounds and is a delicious food fish. Lingcods live over rocky sea bottoms to several thousand feet deep.

long-legged crab kwukwátlshun

[Paralithodes camtschatica (Tilesius)] • The Alaska king crab is said to be called kwukwátlshun in reference to its very long legs. This crab is sometimes encountered by fishermen in deep waters of the Gulf of Georgia. It is said that the Duncan people used to call the Nanaimo soccer players by this name, perhaps because they were such good runners.

[Cancer magister Dana] • Dungeness crab is the most common edible crab among all coastal First Nations of British Columbia. It is a favorite food.

little crabs (Chemainus, Nanoose) 'e'ýx̣a'lh • Any small crab of any type may be referred to by this term, which means 'baby crab'.

soft-shelled crab smulsh

[Cancer magister Dana] • This word refers to dungeness crabs immediately after they have molted and shed their old exoskeletons. At this time the crabs have a very soft shell, lack their normal color and are considered inedible.

sand crayfish, mud shrimp

ma'mul

[?Upogebia pugettensis (Dana)] • This is known locally as a "sand crayfish". It is described as a little greenish shrimp encountered when people are digging clams. This is likely the mud shrimp, a small shrimp that ranges in color from brownish to greyish to bluish, and which burrows in mud flats.

dogfish kwe:c̣

[Squalus acanthias Linnaeus] • The spiny dogfish is a small shark whose skin is rough due to the presence of small spiny scales. During World War II, dogfish were fished commercially and their livers were harvested as a source of Vitamin A. The Elders say that this fish is not eaten.

dolphin k'wa:n't

[Lagenorhynchus obliquidens Gill] •

The word for porpoise has been extended to refer also to dolphins. Pacific white-sided dolphins are slightly larger than harbor porpoises, and are black with an elongate white or grey stripe on each side and white fish roe ʔemukw

fish roe, salmon eggs ɔ́lulǔ

• This term refers to the entire mass of salmon eggs when removed in a single piece from the salmon.

flounder ɔ́puwíʔ

[Platichthys stellatus Pallas] • There are numerous types of flounders in British Columbian waters, including the starry flounder, known as ɔ́puwíʔ. Starry flounders may be identified by the alternating dark and light bands of color on their fins. The starry flounder is a flavorful food fish.

halibut scaʔtǔ

[Hippoglossus stenolepis Schmidt] • The Pacific halibut usually lives in deep water and can grow to a very large size. Their flesh is firm, white and very tasty. Some speakers regard this as their favorite fish to eat.

herring slhewúʔ

little herring (or an almost empty herring bucket)

slhelhwúʔ

[Clupea harengus Linnaeus] • The Pacific herring is a relatively small, silvery and generally abundant fish that is eaten by many other fishes and other animals in the sea. Herrings were formerly caught using herring rakes, tools that were dipped into water to impale herrings.

herring eggs ɔ́mush [Clupea harengus Linnaeus] • Herring eggs (roe) are collected from spawning herrings and eaten. Many people prefer the traditional method of gathering herring roe on the boughs of red cedar trees.

jellyfish slhǔmuyqsun

[various species, including Aurelia aurita (Linnaeus)] • This term refers to any type of jellyfish, including the moon jellyfish, a common small jellyfish of the British Columbia coast.

kelp ɔ́am

[Nereocystis luetkeana (Mert.) Post. & Rupr.] • The bull or bottle kelp is also sometimes known locally as “bulb kelp”. All of these names refer to the large, rounded ball at the top of the kelp stalk where the kelp blades are attached. This swollen end is hollow, allowing it to float at the surface of the water.

seawater black mussel lhelwǔm

[Mytilus edulis Linnaeus] • The blue mussel is a common species that attaches itself to hard surfaces with dark threads called byssal threads. It forms dense masses in quiet, sheltered intertidal locations. Blue mussels are edible. Because of their dark shells, they are sometimes called “seawater black mussels”.

octopus (Chemainus, Nanoose) sqimúkʷ

octopus (Nanaimo) stulxwúh

[Octopus dofleini (Wülker)] • The giant Pacific octopus is the largest octopus species in the world. It has eight arms lined with suction cups that it uses to capture and eat various molluscs, crustaceans and fish. The giant Pacific octopus is sometimes eaten as food by humans.

Sea Life

orca, killer whale

qullhánumucun ~

qunlhánumucun

[Orcinus orca (Linnaeus)] • Killer whales are distinctive and easily recognized black and white sea mammals that are common in many parts of the coast of British Columbia. They are known to chase after and eat salmon and herring, but some killer whales are also known to attack seals, other whales, and many other animals now known to include certain types of sharks.

oyster ɪluḥwɪluḥw

[Crassostrea gigas (Thunberg) and possibly also Ostrea lurida Carpenter] • This term refers to the the Japanese oyster, which was introduced from Japan in the early 1900s and now occurs along the British Columbia coast outside of the areas where it is cultivated. The term may have originally referred to the much smaller native oyster.

perch weci'

[Cymatogaster aggregata Gibbons] • The shiner perch, often referred to simply as “shiner”, is a small, silvery fish that is commonly seen in schools around wharfs and pilings where they are sometimes caught for fun by children. Shiners may also turn up in fishing nets. Native fishermen sometimes use shiners as bait when jigging for lingcod.

porpoise kʷa:nɪ

[Phocoena phocoena (Linnaeus)] •

The harbor porpoise is a small porpoise (to 6 feet long) whose body is dark above and paler underneath. These marine mammals are edible and formerly were hunted for food. In modern times they have been hunted with rifles. The meat can be boiled and eaten with different vegetables such as cabbage, potatoes and onions.

ratfish skwamu

[Hydrolagus colliei (Lay and Bennett)] • Ratfish formerly were caught when fishing for dogfish during World War II. Ratfish livers were commercially used to produce oil for lubricating machinery and cleaning guns. The scientific name Hydrolagus means “water-hare”, in reference to the prominent rodent-like teeth of this unusual-looking fish.

red snapper tuqwtuqʷ

[Sebastes ruberrimus (Cramer)] • The yelloweye rockfish, or “red snapper” of British Columbian waters, is a different fish than the true red snapper of more southern west coast waters. The local “red snapper” is a very red edible fish related to numerous other rockfish that occur in British Columbian waters. When brought to the surface from very deep water, the air bladder expands, often forcing part of the pharynx out of the mouth. The air bladder is considered a delicacy when cooked stuffed with oysters, butter clams, cockles, mussels and boiled.

Sea Life

salmon sce:lhtun

[Oncorhynchus spp.] • This term refers in general to any kind of salmon (coho, dog, humpback, sockeye, or spring).

salmon roe, salmon eggs quluḥ humpback salmon (Chemainus, Nanoose) ha:n

humpback salmon (Nanaimo) hanuḥ

[Oncorhynchus gorbuscha (Walbaum)] • The English name humpback salmon comes from the fact that the spawning male of this species has a very prominent humped back.

coho salmon ḡuchuqs

[Oncorhynchus kisutch (Walbaum)] • Young coho salmon in the early part of their third year of life are called “bluebacks” and may be about 18 inches long. After they reach a length of 2-3 feet long they are called ḡuchuqs.

[Oncorhynchus tshawytscha (Walbaum)] • Tyee is the name used for a large spring salmon (more than 30 pounds) when in the river.

side of wind-dried salmon slhquléḥuḥ

sockeye salmon sthuqi'

[Oncorhynchus nerka (Walbaum)] • Sockeye salmon are said not to come up the Nanaimo River.

spring salmon sḥaqwi'

[Oncorhynchus tshawytscha

(Walbaum)] • The name for a regular spring salmon is sḥaqwi, while smaller jack spring salmon are known as Ihilhḡuḥs. Spring salmon spawn in the Nanaimo River.

dog salmon kḡwaluxw

[Oncorhynchus keta (Walbaum)] • Dog salmon spawn in the Nanaimo River and are noted for the distinctive vertical stripes on their sides.

fish scales, tree needles ḥhuḥc

sea cucumber thikwt

[Parastichopus californicus (Stimpson)] • This creature is called a sea cucumber because its body is similar in shape and size to the vegetable, cucumber. Sea cucumbers are related to sea urchins, and this largest local species has rough, reddish-brown or orangish-brown skin. Sea cucumbers may sometimes be found stranded after the tide drops. They have five strips of white muscles that run the length of their body and may be eaten.

sea egg, sea urchin skḡwithi'

[Strongylocentrotus droebachiensis (Müller)] • This is a small, dull green or yellow-green sea urchin with short, crowded spines. It may be found in the intertidal area away from strongly breaking waves. The hard shell may be broken open to expose the edible roe.

red sea urchin ḥixwe

[Strongylocentrotus franciscanus (Agassiz)] • The red sea urchin has long, crowded spines and is the largest sea urchin in British Columbia waters. It occurs in areas similar to those where green sea urchins are found. Red sea urchins also have been harvested for their edible roe.

Sea Life

seaweed, laver lhuq̓us

[Porphyra abbottae Krishnamurthy and possibly other Porphyra spp.] • Edible seaweed is a very thin, membranous alga that ranges in color from olive-green to brownish-purple. It is gathered from the rocky places where it grows, dried and eaten as an important sea vegetable.

shark kwuá:lhu

[Hexanchus griseus (Bonnaterre) (sixgill shark), Lamna ditropis (Hubbs and Follett) (salmon shark), and possibly others] • There are several species of large sharks in British Columbian waters, several of which may be referred to by the term kwuá:lhu. Among the sharks associated with this name are the “mud shark” (the sixgill shark) and the “mackerel shark”, which is also sometimes called the “man-eating shark” (the salmon shark). (Note that the salmon shark is not a true man-eater and that the spiny dogfish is sometimes also called mud shark.)

sea shells q̓uyémun

• This term refers to any type of bivalve shells, like clam shells, when piled up together.

skate q̓eéquw̓

[Raja spp., probably especially R. binoculata Girard (big skate)] • There are several species of skates in British Columbian waters. One of the most common and widely recognized skates is the big skate. Skate “wings” (the pectoral fins) are edible.

smelt lhałus

[? Mallotus villosus (Muller)]

smelt sca'kwum

[? Hypomesus pretiosus (Girard)]

Lewis' moon snail qumé:ne'

[Polinices lewisii (Gould)] • The moon snail is a large, round sea snail found intertidally and deeper. The moon snail feeds on a variety of clams by drilling a hole in the shell and eating the soft part inside. One can tell if a clam has been eaten by a moon snail if the clam shell has a small round hole in it near the hinge.

land snail wuq̓uq̓

• Wuq̓uq̓ is the name used to refer to any land snail (like a slug, but with a shell). There are many species of such snails.

sea snail thuq̓wuye'

[Fusitriton oregonense (Redfield) (Oregon triton)] • This term refers to various types of small sea snails whose shells are pointed at the top. These include the Oregon triton, a common marine snail that is the largest of the intertidal snails in our region.

starfish tumulqlh ~ tamulqlh

• This term refers to all starfish, or sea stars.

steamed clams sthxwas

steelhead s̓xu'q̓úm

[Salmo gairdneri (Richardson)]

• Steelhead trout reach up to 45" in length and 36 pounds in weight. They spend part of their lives in the sea and part in fresh water.

Sea Life

steelhead (Nanaimo) qiwǎx̣

[Salmo gairdneri (Richardson)]

sturgeon qwta:ythun

[Acipenser medirostris Ayres (green sturgeon) and/or A. transmontanus Richardson (white sturgeon)] • Sturgeons are large, primitive slow-swimming fishes that live primarily in murky waters. They use their barbels, or “whiskers”, to locate food on the bottom. Both green sturgeons and white sturgeons are found in this area, but the green sturgeon is seldom seen. Some sturgeons have been known to reach 1,800 pounds in weight and be 20 feet long.

trout ḳwsic ~ ḳwsuc

[Salmo clarki Richardson (cutthroat trout) and S. gairdneri Richardson (rainbow trout)] • This term refers to any kind of trout, such as cutthroat trout or rainbow trout.

little trouts ḳwulí'ḳwsuc
